

- perform 10-day quarantine upon their arrival if they are not adequately protected² against COVID-19, including children under 12 years;
 - undergo a COVID-19 test between the fourth and seventh day after their arrival in the destination community.
- 4) All persons leaving Iqaluit and travelling to the South of the Province are authorized if they meet the following conditions:
- they do not have any symptoms consistent with COVID-19 (unusual cough, breathing difficulties, fever, loss of sense of smell or taste) and are not identified as COVID-19 cases or case contacts by the Department of Public Health. Otherwise, they are required to travel by special flight;
 - before departure, with the exception of children aged under one year, they must show proof of a negative result for a COVID-19 test performed within a 72-hour period preceding travel;¹
 - persons travelling by charter flight with no contact with the population of other Nunavut communities are not required to be tested before departure.
- 5) The following public measures are in effect for the community of Iqaluit:
- daycares, churches, community centres, schools and any other public place deemed non-essential will be closed and all non-essential activities suspended;
 - essential services such as grocery stores, CLSC/Nursing Stations, municipal services (electricity, heating, water and telecommunications), including construction and maintenance work deemed essential, as well as police services, will continue to operate;
 - residents are instructed to cease all visits, including those between family members not living in the same house;
 - outings on the land among persons living in the same house are permitted;
 - the curfew imposed on October 13, 2021 by the Chief of Police and Director of Public Security of Nunavut is maintained until further notice. It is forbidden for any person, between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m., to be away from their residence, unless they can demonstrate that they are away from this place to obtain essential services or to provide such services.

In case of a change in the current health situation in Nunavut, the Director of Public Health may enact other directives.

Marie Rochette, M.D., M.Sc., FRCPC
